

Are You Ready

to Bring Your Lessons ALIVE

and Stand Out as an Educator?

Funded by a grant from the Library of Congress, the Teaching with Primary Sources (TPS) Program at Governors State University (GSU) provides free professional development.

Imagine the enlivened learning experience you can create...

- Reading the actual letter a soldier wrote home after he survived the Battle of Gettysburg VS. reading the text book account of it
- Listening to Depression Era recordings performed by the original musicians VS. hearing a lecture describing the music
- Experiencing a historical documentary prepared using modern day mobile devices to allow students exciting digital storytelling with access to original artifacts of history VS. watching a slide show or viewing photos of those artifacts in their textbooks

We invite you to explore our
TPS-GSU
Coaches Academy!

Developing a TPS-GSU Coach in your school or district will provide support for your teachers to:

Guide teachers to search for Library primary sources as examples of informational texts

Support your teachers to create engaging lessons that are focused around CCSS

Utilize the distinction between using primary sources and secondary sources in writing

We assist K-12 educators in bringing to life the rich reservoir of primary sources from the Library of Congress with innovative media and technology, while simultaneously developing lesson plans focused on achieving CCSS.
