

Schena Warren Harris

Schena is a trainer for the Library of Congress Teaching with Primary Sources program at Governors State University. She participated in Governors State University's TPS Winter 2010 seminar. Schena's Library of Congress project entitled, "Telling Tales of Slavery," integrated language arts and social studies as students studied American slavery through slave narratives. Students ultimately created their very own narrative. Schena has also participated in GSU's TPS on teaching the Constitution through use of primary source materials.

Schena is entering her seventh year as an educator. She works with students with disabilities within the Chicago Public Schools. She is currently working on her certification in Administrative Leadership.
