

Susan Lynch

Susan is a Program Specialist for the Library of Congress Teaching with Primary Sources program at Governors State University. She is working to develop and design teaching materials to further the Library of Congress TPS program into the mobile learning environment. She participated in the Library of Congress professional development for teachers in the fall of 2010. Susan's Library of Congress project titled, "Student Inquiry into World War II," is a background building, self-paced, differentiated lesson for middle school students.

Susan is an 8th grade Language Arts teacher at Manteno Middle School. This is her eighth year teaching in Manteno. She recently added a Reading Teacher endorsement to her certificate. Susan earned a Master of Arts Degree in Education from Chicago State University after many years in the business world. Her Bachelor of Science in Business is from Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, IL.